THE GREEDY DOG What a good time I shall have eating the meat when I get home, said a dog, as it started to cross a stream of water. He stopped suddenly and looked down into the water. There was a shadow. That dog has a larger piece of meat than I, he said. I want that piece of meat, and I will have it. He growled. But the dog in the water did not move, nor drop his piece of meat. He snapped at the dog in the water. He was soon sorry for that. the meat slipped from his mouth and sank to the bottom of the stream, and the dog in the water lost his meat at the same time.
